Wallace Wilkinson Speedway? Liberty Police crack down on speeders

By Larry Rowell Staff Writer

Heed the warning — anyone planning on flying under the radar on U.S. 127 through Liberty is going to get a speeding citation from a Liberty police officer, no ifs, ands, or buts about it.

Acting on a comment made by Liberty City Councilman Jim Ellison during the Jan. 11 council meeting about speeders on the bypass, Liberty police wasted little time in blue lighting, and ticketing, violators.

“We clocked some drivers going 30 mph over the limit, that’s 70 in a 40 mph zone,” said Liberty Police Chief Steven Garrett.

Since the beginning of the year, officers have written 47 speeding tickets with an average speed of more than 55 mph in a 40 mph zone. During this same time period last year, one speeding ticket was written.

Garrett said that the majority of the violations occurred from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m. when many people are going to work.

As to why so many are speeding, Garrett said that it could be inattention or people are running late for work.

Or, it might be that cars headed north in the two lanes are racing to see who will be in the lead when the lanes go to a single lane.

Running radar on the north end of the bypass next to Beard’s Trading Post, Garrett said that from the light at McDonald’s to Beard’s some drivers reached dangerously high speeds for a commercial area within the city limits.

“There are a lot of workers at Tarter Industries who walk across the street to eat at McDonald’s. Somebody going 20 over might not be able to stop,” Garrett said.

Additionally, Garrett said that last year in Liberty there were 130 accidents and some of those were attributed to speed and inattention.

The chief also said that many elderly people come to town early to do grocery shopping and typically they don’t drive fast on the bypass.

However, they might not be able to react fast enough when a driver is coming down the bypass at 70 mph.

The interdiction efforts are paying off. Garrett said that as of Thursday morning, speeders are almost nonexistent on the bypass.

And to respond to what critics might say about the heightened surveillance of the bypass becoming a speedtrap? “Look, we’re not trying to make it hard on working folks — we want people to be safe,” Garrett said.

However, Liberty Mayor Steve Sweeney defended the actions of the police department.

“They’re not being overzealous about it. If people don’t want to get tickets, tell them to slow down,” he said.

Garrett said that although officers will be looking for speed violations on the bypass in the future, it isn’t the only thing they have to do.

“We’re a small department with five full time and two part time officers, and one officer is the school resource officer during the day at Casey County High School,” Garrett said.

In addition to traffic patrol, officers working alone answer domestic disturbance calls, lock-outs, burglaries, reckless driver complaints, and drug investigations, among many others, Garrett said.

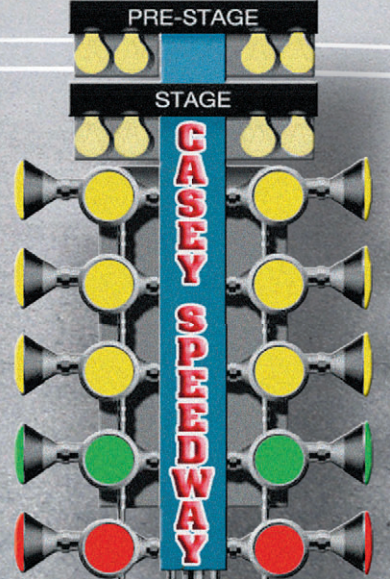

Sweeney said that while checking on speeders is important, there are things that are equally as or more important things officers have to do.

In addition, Sweeney said that there’s really no excuse for racing through Liberty at a high rate of speed.

“This isn’t a speedtrap — there’s signage and the speed limits are set by the state,” he said.

Still, Sweeney had nothing but praise for the police department.

“They’re doing their job and I have the highest regard for them. I’m proud of them,” he said.

Hoskins files for state house seat

Local candidate to face two from Mt. Vernon in primary

By Larry Rowell Staff Writer

A well-known and long-time Liberty resident has filed to run for state office.

Todd Hoskins traveled to Frankfort on Monday to file election papers in the Secretary of State’s Office to run for the House of Representatives in the 80th district which comprises Casey, Rockcastle, and parts of Pulaski and Madison counties. The district is part of a redistricting plan Gov. Steve Beshear signed into law on Jan. 20.

However, a Franklin County Circuit Court Judge was expected to rule by the close of business on Tuesday about a lawsuit filed by House Minority Leader, Rep. Jeff Hoover, R-Jamestown.

Hoover says that the redistricting plan is unconstitutional because it divides more counties than is necessary.

In the 80th District, for example, Madison County also contains parts of the 81st and 88th districts.

The lawsuit also seeks an injunction that would extend the Jan. 31 filing deadline to run for state office.

A political neophyte who’s never held office, Hoskins, 39, and a Republican, said with Rep. Danny Ford, R-Mt. Vernon, bowing out of the race after 31 years in the House, this was now the time to run.

“I felt like somebody from Casey County needed to run to represent our ideals. We need good honest people to go to Frankfort,” Hoskins said.

Hoskins, an agent with Kentucky Farm Bureau Insurance for 17 years, will face two Republicans in the May 22 primary — Bro. Mark Eaton, Pastor of Central Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon and Roger Coldiron, United States Navy, Retired, also of Mt. Vernon.

The decision Hoskins made to run for the seat came after much prayer, reflection and consulting with friends and family, he said.

“Everyone that I talked with about this has been fully supportive,” Hoskins said, adding he talked with Sen. Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, and Sen. Vernie McGaha, R-Russell Springs, who he said supported his bid to run.

His father-in-law, Casey County Judge/Executive Ronald Wright, is a veteran of political campaigns.

State Sen. Higdon ‘happy to be back’ as districts change

By Larry Rowell Staff Writer

Sen. Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, is back in Casey County’s 14th Senate District — as least for now.

Just five days after Gov. Steve Beshear signed the redistricting plan for state legislators into law, Higdon was at Liberty’s City Hall to address this and other legislative issues.

However, House Minority Floor Leader Jeff Hoover, R-Jamestown, along with others, filed a lawsuit challenging the House’s redistricting map in Franklin Circuit Court Thursday.

The suit seeks an injunction to delay implementing the redistricting plan and postponing the Jan. 31 election filing deadline until the matter is resolved.

Speaking to about 30 constituents for an hour, Higdon said that he was happy to be back in Casey County. His district now comprises Casey, Taylor, Marion, Washington, Lincoln, and Mercer counties.

Higdon reviewed current bills in the legislature and gave special attention to bills that he has filed:

Budget

“It’s not pretty. This is not the year to get anything — this is the year to keep what you have,” Higdon said, referring to the new biennium budget the legislature’s working on.

Of the $750 million projected shortfall, Higdon said that legislators have been able to find about $500 million of that deficit through taking money from the rainy day fund, and savings from other programs.

Higdon said that 85 percent of the current state budget (89 percent in the new budget) goes to “educate, medicate, and incarcerate,” or schools, Medicare, and prison costs.

About 830,000 Kentuckians participate in Medicaid and by 2014, Higdon said the number will be more than 1.1 million. The federal government pays 66 percent of the Medicaid bill while the state pays 33 percent.

Still, facing a remaining budget deficit of $250 million, Higdon said that most state agencies will see an 8.6 percent budget cut.

SEEK funding, the monies the state gives school districts, will revert to 2008 levels, which Casey County

Superintendent Linda Hatter told Higdon is “a cut.”

Higdon also cited a possible $200 million annual gain by eliminating a program — Impact Plus — that is a mental health program in Kentucky.

On the bright side, the Department of Transportation’s revenue is up 16 percent from two years ago, mostly from the gasoline and vehicle sales tax, Higdon said.

Pill mills

In an effort to stem the rising tide of prescription drug abuse, Higdon has introduced a bill to regulate “pill mills.” Referring to a percentage of pain management clinics that write unneeded prescriptions for pain medications, Higdon’s bill would require the clinics to have a state license, be physician owned, and have background checks for the physicians and employees in the clinic.

Currently, only a state license is required. Higdon cited an example of a pain management clinic that opened in Lebanon in the fall of 2010. The clinic advertised not in the Lebanon newspaper but in newspapers 200 miles away in eastern Kentucky, Higdon said. When the Lebanon Enterprise newspaper staff began to investigate, the clinic closed within two weeks.

Expanded gaming.

“I don’t think y’all will see a vote on this this year,” Higdon said, adding that his reasons are based on what’s happening with the issue in the House of Representatives.

EDITORIAL

Kudos to LPD for safety efforts

It was recently brought to the attention of the Liberty Police Department that Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard through Liberty had turned into somewhat of an autobahn, similar to the roadways in Europe where drivers choose their speed.

Once the problem came to light, Chief Steven Garrett and his officers acted decisively, issuing 47 speeding citations the first three weeks of this month.

And that's a good thing, done for the public's safety and, because it's the law.

Citations indicate that some drivers were clocked on radar at 30 mph over the speed limit, driving 70 mph in a 40 mph zone.

That's not only dangerous, it's crazy given the amount of local traffic — especially elderly drivers — pulling in and out of local businesses.

Garrett also said that many workers at Tarter Industries walk across the bypass to frequent local eateries.

Would a driver, before daylight, driving 70 mph, be able to avoid hitting and possibly killing a pedestrian?

Kudos to Garrett and the fine officers in his department for ramping up efforts to make driving on the bypass less hazardous.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Wall at park brings back memories

I would like to see the park stay as it is (in reference to Jan. 11 issue). Delbert Ellison was my dad. He worked in limestone rock, building things and making tombstones, for lots of people. He also got the rock for a large house that belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Reed Durham in Yosemite.

There were four of us girls and I was the tomboy. I helped Dad in the rock business. When I was younger, I handed Dad tools when he needed them. I did even more when I got older.

The wall at the park means a lot to me, knowing that my dad helped in building it. I sure hope it will not be torn down.

Girdle torture

A friend recently sent me an e-mail with pictures from a 1934 Montgomery Ward catalogue. They were all priceless but the ones I got the biggest laugh out of were the ones for what they called "corselets." Corselets? They were fabric torture chambers that covered a woman from chest to mid-thigh.

I remember when a lady didn't appear in public without at least a girdle on underneath everything. Dolly Parton's character in "Steel Magnolias" even said, "Well, these thighs haven't gone out of the house without Lycra on them since I was 14."

These corselets, however, made the girdles look positively comfortable.

My favorite picture in the old catalog had the following description: "Keep your smart figure lines this summer — and keep cool too! You can do it with this Cotton Mesh Corselet. Mesh elastic side panels. Boned cotton jean-cloth inner belt. Semi-uplift bust. Back is lightly boned." That thing had enough hooks and eyes on it to keep you busy for a week! Six whales died for the bones in each one of them.

My aunt wore contraptions like this. Without one, she probably was made like I am except she had a ginormous bosom. Come to think of it, her bosom might not have been so huge — that foundation garment she wore might have pushed everything way on up. I remember as a kid that if you hugged her it felt like hugging an extra-firm mattress. You could have bounced a quarter off any part of her body from her bosom to her knees!

I was in school at Western Kentucky University the summer after I graduated from high school. I lived in a dorm that was pretty far from my classroom building and I had to walk to it. It was summer, the temperature outside was in the 90s, the dorm was not air-conditioned, and the classroom was not air-conditioned.

Now, I was a proper young lady in that I wore a girdle. It was one of those tube-like rubber things that squeezed your thighs together. That girdle almost did me in. I sweated up a storm between my fat little thighs. The girdle made them rub together and with all that sweat it was not long until my thighs were raw and in pain.

Somebody, probably my mother, told me to rub cornstarch on my thighs to absorb the sweat and to keep my thighs from being rubbed raw. I tried it. It didn't work. The cornstarch and sweat got together and made little dough balls that fell onto the ground with every step I took. I swear, the birds at WKU loved me that summer and followed me everywhere.

I was absolutely in love with the long-leg panty girdles that came out in the 1960s. They ended the problem of thighs rubbing together. You also had a lot more freedom of movement because your thighs weren't banded together with rubber. There was one problem that I had occasionally, though. Sometimes the mesh of the girdle would separate just enough to get a little piece of skin between the threads. Ouch! There was absolutely no ladylike way you could extract that little hunk of flesh without looking like you were doing some exotic dance. I did some dancing or I just stopped and yanked on the bottom of the leg of that thing.

The 1970s brought pantsuits into fashion. Heaven! I haven't worn a girdle since that time and I plan never to wear one again.

Now that, ladies, is a hoot!

If you do the crime, prepare to pay the fine

Larry
Staff Writer

And, while law enforcement officers stress "Click it or ticket" with regards to seat belts, some of these violations are dismissed, especially when coupled with other traffic offenses.

Now, I understand that it's well within the discretion of the court — especially with traffic offenses — to make exceptions when extenuating circumstances come to light, such as getting someone to a hospital.

To further complicate matters, judges and prosecutors are elected officials who feel the pressure from voters when it comes to these ticklish situations of reducing fines and dismissing cases.

That's politics and the nature of the beast that lurks on the roadway to re-election.

But to simply get a phone call from a friend or supporter asking that a run-of-the-mill, no excuse for speeding violation be reduced or dismissed is one that puts these elected officials between the proverbial rock and a hard place.

I believe that for the most part, officers of the court, sworn to uphold the law, want to do just that.

Otherwise, they should re-enter the field of private practice.

On the other hand, a working stiff who got up late and was speeding because he was late to work is also inexcusable and his fine shouldn't be reduced or dismissed.

As a former law enforcement officer who appeared in traffic court to testify, I had more than one traffic violator lance a smirk my way after having had his or her case dismissed.

What message does it send to law enforcement officers who make good cases by issuing citations only to see violators walk out of court — time after time — with a slap on the wrist?

Let me add that I'm not casting any stones at local officials. I'm just raising an issue in a weekly opinion column.

And if I get a ticket? You won't see me in court if it's a prepayable fine.

If I do the crime, I'll pay the fine.

Three bills gain passage through state senate this week

Jimmy
HIGDON
State
Senator

We are now a quarter way through session. Bills are flowing through the committee process and arriving on the Senate floor for consideration before the entire chamber.

Three bills won passage this week and will now head to the House of Representatives.

Senate Bill 55 allows for interstate mutual aid agreements among first-responders and other emergency response personnel. That is to say, that if an emergency occurs near local or state borders, emergency personnel can respond regardless of their home base.

We had two education bills. Senate Bill 24, which I sponsored, would require children to be 5 years old prior to August 1 of the year they begin kindergarten. The measure would, however, allow parents to petition local school boards for early admission. There is some debate whether children are emotionally mature enough to enter kindergarten when school begins in August. This bill adds structure so that parents will have guidelines but still be able to decide for their own children. Senate Bill 64 is a bill supported by the School Board Association and other education groups to increase the integrity of the assessment testing process. It would make it unlawful for any school employee to provide any assistance either before or after, in terms of providing or altering answers, to students during the assessment testing process. The vast majority of school employees are dedicated and honest but unfortunately, we've had a few bad actors involved in modifying test scores which threatens the scores of all of our kids. If passed by the House, both these bills would take effect during the 2017-2018 school year.

Finally, the Senate, working with the House, passed a bill to extend the congressional filing deadline until Feb. 7 in light of ongoing negotiations between the House and Senate.

Next week, the governor's budget director will be appearing in front of the Senate Appropriations and Revenue Committee to discuss the governor's budget proposal. I have concerns that even though the state faces almost a billion dollar shortfall, the governor proposed $815 million in additional spending, including $372 million in existing debt service.

Some of this debt service is from the governor's restructuring of debt something both the House and the Senate had directed not to do in the last budget and which he vetoed.

Center Director Jennifer Harsey told the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center Advisory Board on Jan. 24 that there are more than 60 events booked this year. And, she added, more calls are coming in for the remaining available dates.

Harsey said that there's events for every member of the family, from tractor pulls, wrestling and horse shows to go-kart racing and gospel sings.

Harsey also presented a partial financial report to the board showing $5,366 in income for December.

The expenses at the center — such as salaries and utility bills — are paid through the Casey County Judge Executive's office.

Seven businesses have purchased an advertising banner that will be hung in the large arena. Four additional businesses have committed to purchasing the $500 banners.

Several cases of pertussis diagnosed in Casey

Officials urge residents to educate themselves on disease prevention

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A potentially dangerous disease is making a comeback and health officials want to make sure residents know how to prevent, diagnose and treat it.

Several cases of whooping cough, or pertussis, have been diagnosed in Casey County in recent months, said Christine Weyman, medical director at the Lake Cumberland District Health Department in Somerset.

And some cases have been found at schools in the Casey County School District.

"We've had six cases altogether in schools since coming back from Christmas break, said Casey School District Medical Director Gwen Marcum.

Marcum said that when pertussis cases become known, it has to be reported to the local health department.

She also said that the school identifies the infected students' close contacts.

In addition, the health department recommends that a general information letter be sent home with students, alerting parents of the situation.

Weyman said that whooping cough is a bacterial disease, which initially produces cold-like symptoms with minimal or no fever, followed by a cough, which in adults can last for 100 days.

Severe attacks of coughing sometimes cause patients to produce a "whoop" and they may vomit or even break ribs.

Weyman said the best protection against pertussis is a DTaP (diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis) vaccination.

However, the protection from the vaccination, which adolescents and adults received as children, has weakened and these age groups are now susceptible.

A one time dose of Tdap vaccine is available to boost the protection of adolescents and adults.

Pertussis is a contagious disease and those who are in close contact or share homes with infected persons are at risk.

Someone with the disease is contagious for at least three weeks.

Antibiotic treatment started within the first week can lower the contagious period.

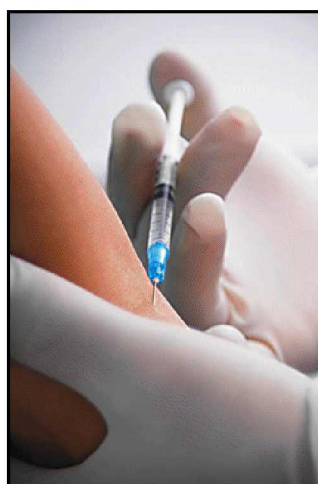

However, starting more than three weeks after the beginning of the disease may not alter the natural history of the illness, Weyman said.

Close contacts of whooping cough cases should receive vaccination and antibiotic treatment — such as five days of Zithromycin as soon as possible, and no later than 21 days after an onset of coughing.

Young babies are at greatest risk, as they have not yet been immunized against pertussis.

Pertussis is most severe in babies younger than six months — they may stop breathing as well as experience complications, which can include pneumonia and seizures.

Hospitalization is usually required for infants with whooping cough.

Officials say the best protection against pertussis is a Tdap (diphtheria, tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis) vaccination.

The best test to diagnose a case of pertussis is the nucleic acid (PCR) test from a nasopharyngeal swab, available from the patient's health care provider.

Whooping cough is a reportable disease. Lake Cumberland District Health Department officials urge those with pertussis to report it to their local health department.

Hoskins

"I talked with my father-in-law to make sure it wouldn't conflict with him. It doesn't and he gave me his blessing," Hoskins said.

Now that the decision to run has been finalized, Hoskins said that he's got a lot of work to do before the May primary.

"I've going to try and get on the ground there in Rockcastle, Pulaski and Madison counties," Hoskins said.

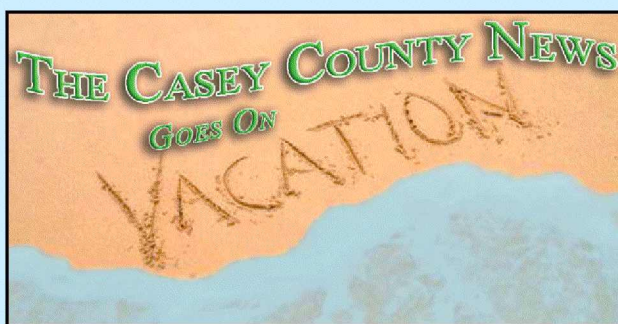

A graduate of Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, Hoskins said that he's somewhat familiar with Madison County.

In addition to old-fashioned political handshaking, Hoskins said that he would try and get some fundraisers organized.

Hoskins said he wants people to know what he'll do for them if elected.

"I want to be a good listener about what my people in the district want and I'll take that to Frankfort," Hoskins said.

Hoskins is married to the former Tracie Wright and the couple has three children — Dakota, 12, Riley, 10, and Linnie Brooke, 20 months.

Ask A Senior Question

Get A Savvy Answer

2011 tax filing requirements for seniors*Dear Savvy Senior

What are the 2011 IRS income tax filing requirements for seniors? I had to file and pay federal income taxes last year, but my income dropped and I'm wondering if I'm exempt this year.

Recently Retired*Dear Retired,

According to the Tax Policy Center, 56 percent of retirees will not have to file or pay federal income taxes this year mainly because their incomes are under the IRS filing threshold. Here's a breakdown of the 2011 filing requirements along with a few other tax tips to help you determine if you need to file.

IRS Requirements

If your gross income is below the IRS filing limits, you probably won't have to file a federal tax return this year. Gross income includes all the income you receive that is not exempt from tax, not including Social Security benefits, unless you are married and filing separately. You probably don't have to file this year if:

■ You are single and your 2011 gross income was less than $9,500 ($10,950 if you're 65 or older).

■ You are married filing jointly and your gross income was under $19,000. If you or your spouse is 65 or older, the limit increases to $20,150. And if you're both over 65, your income must be under $21,300 to not file.

■ You are head of household and your gross income was below $12,200 ($13,650 if age 65 or older).

■ You are married filing separately and your income was less than $3,700.

■ You are a qualifying widow(er) with a dependent child and your gross income was less than $15,300 ($16,450 if age 65 or older).

Special Situations

You also need to be aware that there are some special financial situations that require you to file a tax return, even if your gross income falls below the IRS filing requirement. For example, if you had net earnings from self-employment in 2011 of $400 or more, or if you owe any special taxes to the IRS such as alternative minimum tax or IRA tax penalties, you'll probably need to file.

To figure this out, the IRS offers a page on their website called "Do You Need to File a Federal Income Tax Return?" that includes a list of financial situations and a series of questions that will help you determine if you're required to file, or if you should file (if you're due a refund). You can access this page at www.doyouneed2file.info, or you can get help over the phone by calling the IRS helpline at 800-829-1040.

Check Your State

Even if you're not required to file a federal tax return this year, it doesn't necessarily mean you're also excused from filing state income taxes. Check on that with your state tax agency before concluding you're entirely in the clear. For links to state and local tax agencies see taxadmin.org – click on "Links."

Tax Help

If you do need to file a tax return this year, you can get help through the Tax Counseling for the Elderly (or TCE) program. Sponsored by the IRS, TEC provides free tax preparation and counseling to middle and low income taxpayers, age 60 and older. Call 800-829-1040 to locate a service near you.

Also check with AARP, a participant in the TCE program that provides free tax preparation at around 6,100 sites nationwide. To locate an AARP Tax-Aide site call 888-227-7669 or visit aarp.org/findtaxhelp.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

Eight die on Kentucky roadways Jan. 23-29

Preliminary statistics* indicate that eight people died in eight separate crashes on Kentucky roadways from Monday, Jan. 23, through Sunday, Jan. 29, 2012.

Seven of the fatalities involved motor vehicles and five of the victims were not wearing seat belts. Single-fatality crashes occurred in Carroll, Clay, Hardin, Jefferson, Knott, McCracken, and Pike counties. Crashes in Jefferson and McCracken counties involved the suspected use of alcohol.

One pedestrian involved fatal crash occurred in Bell County.

Through Jan. 29, 2012, preliminary statistics* indicate that 46 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2012. This is six more fatalities than reported for the same time period in 2011. There have been 41 motor vehicle fatalities and 23 of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Five of those crashes involved a commercial motor vehicle. One crash involved a motorcycle and that victim was wearing a helmet. Four crashes involved a pedestrian. Seven deaths have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol.

**These statistics are still preliminary as KSP waits for all local law enforcement agencies throughout the state to report any crashes and fatalities that may have occurred in their areas. Crash data for this report is generated from the Kentucky Fatality Analysis Reporting System (FARS).*

In Memory Of Calvin, Rosa, and Otha Thompson

I was very fortunate to have a Christian family and the best family in the world. We don't choose our family, God does and I thank God that I had them. I would have gladly taken their place. Giving them up was the most unbearable thing that I have had to do. I lost Calvin (my brother) on February 4, 2010. I lost mom (Rosa) on November 2, 1996. I lost my Dad (Otha) on March 19, 1989. All from serious heart problems. Love does not end when life does.

Adair and Russell officers bust meth makers

ADAIR COUNTY – Russell County law enforcement officers recently received a tip that methamphetamine was being manufactured at a residence on Melson Ridge in Adair County. They contacted the Adair County Sheriff's Department and Sheriff Harrison Moss and Deputy Justin Claywell went to investigate. Upon arrival at the residence the officers found several vehicles.

Moss and Claywell called Deputy Adam Cravens and Russell County Sheriff's deputies Nick Bertram, Jason Warriner and Mark Cromwell for assistance. When the officers arrived at the site, they found nine people manufacturing methamphetamine and they also found three juveniles present.

All nine individuals were arrested at the scene and charged with manufacturing methamphetamine and three counts of controlled substance, endangerment to a child. Several of the nine were also charged with other violations.

The nine individuals were lodged in the Adair County Regional Jail.

Boyle County man has pants set on fire

BOYLE COUNTY – Billy Joe Hays of Forkland told state police authorities that two men attacked him at his home on KY 37 between Mitchellsburg Knob Road and Minors Branch. The two men then restrained him and set his pants leg on fire with a blow torch.

Hays was able to put the fire out before he was burned. According to accounts, he was wearing insulated underwear under his trousers and this helped prevent him from being badly burned. He was not treated for injuries.

State police spokesman Trooper Paul Blanton said Hays was found on the ground next to his vehicle and his attackers had left the scene by the time police arrived.

Blanton said Hays had been receiving phone threats but did not know who was making the threats. He was unable to identify his attackers because their faces were covered.

State police are investigating the attack as an attempted murder.

Arsonists strike again in Lincoln County

LINCOLN COUNTY – Although State Police arson investigators have not made an official determination of arson, it appears that the fire that burned Ruckel's Farm Supply in Waynesburg is the seventh suspicious fire in the area. Detective Pat Alford said a connection between this fire and the others fires in the area could not be ruled out because of the timing and what has been burned.

Ruckel's Farm Supply is only two miles from East Anderson Hardwoods that earlier had two fires within less than two weeks and is only three miles away from Barron Pallets in Eubank that was destroyed by a suspicious fire. The old Eubank High School had at least three fires set before the building sustained significant damage. The majority of the fires started between 1 a.m and 4 a.m.

Kentucky State Police are asking that anyone with information about any of the fires call the Kentucky Arson Task Force at 1-800-27-ARSON or the KSP Post 7 at 859-623-2404.

Another fire in Lincoln County occurred in a Hustonville flower shop. It is being investigated as a suspected arson. Hustonville Police Chief Fred McCoy said store owner Troy Hafley had made several official statements about his whereabouts at the time of the fire that did not match with eyewitness accounts. In this case, Hafley supposedly admitted to a newspaper reporter that he had started the fire.

Neither KSP Arson Investigator Pat Alford nor an investigator from Hafley's insurance company would comment, saying only that the fire was under investigation. Alford said he had plans to interview Hafley.

Lebanon man shoots his mother

MARION COUNTY – Shane Ray Wright, 32, is under arrest and being held in the Marion County Detention Center for shooting his mother, Susan Wright, 47, at her home on Three Pines Road.

Susan Wright was shot in the head but was able to escape the residence. She was treated at Spring View Hospital and has since been released.

Susan Wright told the police dispatcher that she had just brought her son home from Central State Hospital and he was out of control. She locked herself in her bedroom and told the dispatcher that she was concerned that her son would kill her.

Susan Wright called the dispatcher later and said that she had left the house and was at a neighbor's house.

Several hours later Susan Wright called police again to report the shooting. Law enforcement officers, including KSP's Special Response Team, responded to the scene. Shane Wright was arrested and officers said they thought that Wright was not aware they were there.

Shane Wright has been charged with first-degree assault, domestic violence. Kentucky State Trooper Billy Gregory said that additional charges are expected. Detective Mike Dubree is leading the investigation.

Porkers going hog wild

PULASKI COUNTY – Wild hogs are becoming a problem in Pulaski County, especially in the western part where they have been nuisances for four to five years.

Dave Baker, editor of Kentucky Afield, a Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources magazine, and Chad Soard, wildlife biologist for the department, said last year that wild hogs are a problem in many counties in Kentucky.

Eugene Harness, a cattle farmer on Carter Ridge Road on KY 837 near the Casey County line, has been dealing with the problem of wild hogs for quite a while. He said he had seen six just recently on his farm. He trapped four last spring and, under the supervision of a conservation officer, killed and cleaned them.

Harness said that according to the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife officials, once they are caught they cannot be turned loose; they have to be killed. Baker said that it is open season on wild hogs because they are so destructive. He went on to say that they are not only a problem for farmers, they also mess up habitat for both turkeys and deer.

Frankie Jasper, who also lives on Carter Ridge Road, has suffered damage to his corn crop thanks to the wild porkers. He used dogs to chase them away and said that they will stay away for a while.

Harness and Jasper both said that wild hogs roam at night and are rarely seen after 9 a.m.

The season on wild hogs is always open. Shooting at night is prohibited because of the dangers of gun-related accidents.

Hospital to be expanded

RUSSELL COUNTY – The Russell County Hospital Board is making progress with plans to do a major expansion of the hospital.

A financial feasibility study would support the expansion, assuming a forecast of 3 percent to 4 percent increase a year in charges from 2012 through 2015.

Under the feasibility study, operating income would remain positive except for a small loss for the year in which the building of the new structure would take place.

The study assumed a $21 million loan, which factors in to the $22.5 million total project cost, with the hospital adding $1.4 million.

David Rasmussen, CEO of the hospital, said that the newer facility would draw more volume, particularly in surgery, and that a new and bigger facility influences a potential patient's decision to be treated there.

Two doctors and several hospital personnel expressed that a new, better-equipped facility would be a much greater draw for new physicians, a problem the hospital has struggled with in the past.

Beyond a few questions of assurance of the long-term feasibility of the expansion, there was little that could be construed as opposition to the plan.

Sex abuse charges dropped

TAYLOR COUNTY -- The charge against a Campbellsville man who allegedly sexually abused a 3-year-old girl has been dismissed.

Thomas E. Dowell, 51, of 803 S. Columbia Ave., Campbellsville, was indicted by a Taylor County grand jury in October 2010. He was charged with first-degree sexual abuse of a child younger than 12. Dowell was expected to face a jury on Tuesday morning. However, Taylor Circuit Court Judge Dan Kelly wrote in court records on Monday that the girl's family did not want her to testify, nor did they want to have a hearing to determine if she was competent to testify against Dowell.

Based on the family's feelings, the girl's age and a request by the prosecutor's office, Kelly wrote, the charge against Dowell was dismissed without prejudice but with probable cause stipulated that there was enough evidence to charge him with the crime.

Black's Law Dictionary states that any charges dismissed without prejudice can be re-filed.

According to the indictment, Dowell was accused of having sexual contact with the girl in late spring 2010.

Healthier habits can prevent heart disease

By Jennifer Overstreet,
A.P.R.N.

Though your heart is only a little bit larger than your fist, it pumps about 2,000 gallons of blood as it contracts and expands about 100,000 times a day. As we enter American Heart Month, it's time to focus on lifestyle habits that will keep our hearts healthy.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death among Americans. Heart disease includes angina (chest pain caused by too little blood or oxygen), arrhythmia (abnormal heart beat), congestive heart failure (inefficient heart pumping) and heart attack (blood supply is cut off from part of the heart).

Lifestyle changes and healthy habits can help you manage your risk and prevent these health conditions. This should include developing good nutritional habits and engaging in regular physical activities.

The following recommendations will also help you as you strive to become heart healthy:

■ Eat five servings or more of fruits and vegetables daily.

■ Eat six or more servings of grain products daily.

■ Incorporate fat-free and low-fat milk products, fish, beans, skinless poultry and lean meats in your diet.

■ Try not to consume more calories than you will use in a day.

■ Spend a minimum of 30 minutes a day engaged in physical activity.

■ Limit your intake of soft drinks and candy, which are high in calories and sugars but low in nutritional value.

■ Limit your fat intake to no more than 30 percent of your total daily calories.

■ Eat less than six grams of salt each day.

■ Screen your cholesterol and blood sugar levels, and follow guidelines set by your medical provider if you experience high cholesterol, high blood pressure or diabetes.

But of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you. For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness.

for a great time of fellowship, food and good gospel music. The Walnut Hill Separate Baptist Church had a lot of damage from a break in. Though we had insurance these singers felt led to do this benefit as a gift of love for our church.

For this our church is very grateful, and ask everyone to come out and eat with us and support this event. There is NO CHARGE. Donations will be accepted.

Rebel football team pumping iron and building spirit

By Chris Zollner
Sports Correspondent

The Rebel football season may be six months away but the team is already hard at work in their new weight room facility, working to build the strength and stamina that they'll need to compete on both sides of the ball.

Head Coach Sam Marple went 4-7 in his rookie season, thanks in large part to an aggressive schedule that put his thin squad up against some of the deepest teams in the state. An uncompromising conditioning program also reduced the ranks as the team adjusted to Marple's coaching philosophy.

Marple is looking to build on the training he started last summer and now that the players have a feel for what he expects he believes the program will grow.

"Our numbers are going to be low again this year, with around 25 kids, but should start to grow each year after that, due to these things we are doing," said Marple. "We have our entire varsity football team lifting at the high school level, and right now we have 26 middle school players and sixth graders lifting and we hope to add a few more kids as basketball finishes up."

Thanks to some generous donations from local businesses, the team is aware that the program has support not only from the CCHS administration but also from the community. Tarter Gate helped to build the new weight room that is seeing daily activity and the Casey County Bank provided workout gear to the team as well.

"Our new weight room is as nice as any schools in our area and we feel this is something our kids can take pride in," said Marple. "We feel like this shows our kids that if you're willing to put the effort in to be a Casey County football player you're going to be a part of something that is important and you're going to have nice things."

The goals Marple has for each of the groups is different but the level of commitment and sacrifice are expected to be the same. As the level of competition has increased at the varsity level the team has had to increase their off season training. Marple is looking to equip his squad with the tools they need to get the job done on the football field and that means a lot of extra time in the gym and on the practice field.

When it comes to the middle school and youth programs Marple and his staff are starting slow and working their way up.

"We want to teach these kids basic weight lifting technique and safety to start," said Marple. "We also want to ease our kids into the type of off-season training that will be expected of them once they reach the high school level. This program creates an atmosphere of team work, dedication, and respect while teaching them how to work so there will not be such a large jump in conditioning and required work ethic for players entering the high school level."

"This is also a chance for the high school coaching staff to become part of our kid's lives and development as athletes and young men," Marple continued. "We feel like this weight training will not only help the future of football in this county but also all other sports that these kids play."

Marple recognizes that depth was an issue last year and while it will be again next season he hopes that starting early with the middle school and youth programs will help to change that trend. The program his team is using has been based off the success powerhouse teams like Boyle, Garrard and Bell counties have implemented.

"We feel that the middle school off-season program has to be a priority for our football program to reach the goals we have set for ourselves," said Marple.

Any athlete interested in participating in the workouts is encouraged to contact his coach. Parents with questions can contact Coach Marple at the high school at 606-787-6151.

SPORTS TALK

Show your pride in all of Kentucky's teams

Growing up in "these parts," I'm sure most of you can take a wild guess as to which major college basketball team I spent my time following. I have fond memories of cheering in my blue and white and traveling to Rupp Arena with my Pee Wee basketball team back in the day.

Then I moved to Louisville. As you can imagine, the number of Cardinal fans in my life skyrocketed. Up to this point, I never realized there was a law stating you MUST choose: Cards or Cats. It was impossible to cheer for BOTH. I may be putting myself at risk when I say, I don't hate one and love the other. I am excited to see either do well and bring excitement to this state's basketball arena.

I have not come here to boost the spirits of the red or the blue. The fact of the matter is, we are a basketball state through and through, which makes this time of year one of our favorites. Last year, the state was represented well with two national titles—but not from the University of Louisville or the University of Kentucky. Pikeville College took the Men's NAIA Division I national title and Bellarmine University took the Men's NCAA Division II national title.; first-time accomplishments for both teams.

If we can set our UK and UofL differences aside for a moment, I believe there is a state team we can ALL get behind in NCAA Division II: Murray State. Murray is the only undefeated Division II men's team in the country. Their win this weekend over Eastern Illinois brought their win streak to 21-0.

You might say Murray doesn't play the same tough schedule as the beloved Wildcats or Cardinals, but their record is a feat nonetheless. For a state without a pro basketball team (or football, or major league baseball for that matter), successful college basketball history is something all Kentucky sports fans can pride ourselves in. Despite the level of play, year after year, we have college basketball teams making the news. If you're a collegiate basketball fan, that is something to be excited about.

Don't abandon your allegiance to your favorite Division I team, but put on your Racer fandom face for the next few weeks. If you are a basketball lover in general, now is the time to show your pride in this state's dominance in this nationally loved sport.

Mariah Richardson and Travis Stringer apply a sugar cure to a ham as part of the process in the 4-H Country Ham Project.

Casey students participate in country ham cure project

Twelve Casey County students recently traveled to Adair County to complete the first step in the Country Ham Project: Applying Cure to a Raw Ham. Each student applied a sugar cure to two hams averaging a weight of 21 pounds each. Applying the cure is a very important part of the curing process and determines the success of the curing process. The cure that is applied is a mixture of salt, sugar, nitrite or nitrate, and spices. In some curing processes, salt is the only ingredient used. The salt is the ingredient that makes the preservation of the ham possible. Once the students apply the cure, the hams are wrapped in a white paper and placed in a ham sock.

The sock and paper keeps all the contents of the cure with the ham and helps create the shape of the ham. The hams are placed in a ham house with controlled temperature and ventilation. The hams will be removed in a couple months to brush the cure off, inspect, and be placed back in the ham house until August.

Students build character through 4-H

Participating in livestock programs are one of the most recognized aspects of 4-H, but along with learning about animals young people can develop positive character traits to become the leaders of tomorrow. There are many ways youths can be involved in livestock programs through 4-H. Programs offered through 4-H include quiz competitions, skillathons, livestock judging, projects and shows. Owning an animal is not a requirement for participation. Mentally challenging programs such as quiz contests, skillathons and livestock judging provide young people with skills they can be used throughout their lives. These skills allow 4-H'ers to become more informed consumers, team players, better employees and community leaders, regardless of whether they ever own an animal. Competitions and skillathons test youths' knowledge in various aspects of dairy and livestock production. Dairy Jeopardy covers all facets of the dairy industry, and skillathons test their general knowledge of livestock including nutrition, genetics, disease prevention, and equipment. Young people learn to be more observant, confident and develop effective communication skills. They also learn how to make confident decisions and logically defend those decisions to a judge. Livestock projects allow 4-H'ers to get firsthand experience in raising and caring for an animal. Caring for an animal teaches youth responsibility. As the animal grows, young people can take pride in knowing they helped the animal develop and mature. Livestock shows can be competitive for some youths and parents, but that shouldn't be the focus. The goal of 4-H is to raise grand champion kids, not grand champion livestock. Participation in shows teaches youths the importance of proper public behavior in a contest setting. Participating in shows, such as at the Kentucky State Fair, provides opportunities for youth to develop friendships and network with others from different parts of the state. For more information on these and more 4-H animal science programs, contact the Casey County Cooperative Extension Service at 606-787-7384. The three students are pursuing careers in the health care field.

Better Business Bureau names the top ten scams of 2011

BBB investigates thousands of scams every year. The new Scam Source (www.bbb.org/scam) is a comprehensive resource on scam investigations from BBBs around the country, with tips from BBB, law enforcement and others. You can sign up to receive scam alerts by email, and you can also be a scam detective yourself by reporting scams you've discovered. We've divided scams up into nine major categories and picked the top scam in each, plus the Scam of the Year. Top Job Scam BBB sees lots of secret shopper schemes, work-from-home scams, and other phony job offers, but the worst job-related scam can dash your hopes and steal your identity. Emails, websites and online applications all look very professional, and the candidate is even interviewed for the job (usually over the phone) and then receives an offer. In order to start the job, however, the candidate has to fill out a "credit report" or provide bank information for direct deposit of their "paychecks." The online forms are nothing more than a way to capture sensitive personal data - and, of course, there is no job, either. Top Sweepstakes and Lottery Scam You've won a whole lot of money, and in order to claim it you have to send us a smaller amount of money. Keep it confidential! This year's top sweepstakes scam was undoubtedly the email claiming to be from Facebook founder

Mark Zuckerberg announcing that the recipient was the winner of $1 million from the popular social networking site. These kinds of scams often use celebrities or other famous names to make their offer seem more genuine. If you aren't sure, don't click on the link. Go directly to the homepage of the company mentioned. If they are really giving away $1 million, there will be some kind of announcement on their website. Top Social Media/Online Dating Scam On the Internet, it's easy to pretend to be someone you are not. Are you really friends with all of your "Friends" on Facebook? Do you have a lot of personal information on a dating site? With so much information about us online, a scammer can sound like they know you. There are tons of ways to use social media for scams, but one this year really stands out because it appeals to our natural curiosity...and it sounds like it's coming from a friend. Viral videos claiming to show everything from grisly footage of Osama bin Laden's death to the latest celebrity hijinks have shown up on social media sites, often looking as if they have been shared by a friend. When you click on the link, you are prompted to "upgrade your Flash player," but the file you end up downloading contains a worm that logs into your social media account, sends similar messages to your friends, and searches for your personal data.

Top Home Improvement Scam Always near the top of BBB complaint data are home improvement contractors who often leave your home worse than they found it. They usually knock on your door with a story or a deal - the roofer who can spot some missing shingles on your roof, the paver with some leftover asphalt who can give you a great deal on driveway resealing. The worst are those who move in after a natural disaster, taking advantage of desperate homeowners who need immediate help and may not be as suspicious as they would be under normal circumstances. Find a contractor you can trust at www.bbb.org. Top Check Cashing Scam Two legitimate companies - Craig's List and Western Union - are used for an inordinate amount of scamming these days, and especially check cashing scams. Here's how it works: Someone contacts you via a Craig's List posting, maybe for a legitimate reason like buying your old couch or perhaps through a scam like hiring you as a secret shopper. Either way, they send you a check for more than the amount they owe you, and they ask you to deposit it into your bank account and then wire the difference via Western Union. When the original check bounces, you are out whatever money you wired...and you're still stuck with the old couch. Top Phishing Scam "Phishing" is when you receive a suspicious phone call asking for personal information or an email that puts a virus on your computer to hunt for your data. It's almost impossible to avoid them if you have a telephone or an email account. But the most pernicious phishing scam this year disguised itself as official communication from NACHA - the National Automated Clearing House Association - which facilitates the secure transfer of billions of electronic transactions every year. The email claims one of your transactions did not go through, and it hopes you react quickly and click on the link before thinking it through. It may take you to a fake banking site "verify" your account information, or it may download malware to infiltrate your computer. Top Identity Theft Scam There are a million ways to steal someone's identity. This one has gotten so prevalent that many hotels are posting warnings in their lobby. Here's how it works: You get a call in your hotel room in the middle of the night. It's the front desk clerk, very apologetic, saying their computer has crashed and they need to get your credit card number again, or they must have gotten the number wrong because the transaction won't go through, and could you please read the number back so they can fix the problem? Scammers are counting on you being too sleepy to catch on that the call isn't from the hotel at all, but from someone outside who knows the direct-dial numbers for the guest rooms.

Top Financial Scam In challenging economic times, many people are looking for help getting out of debt or hanging on to their home, and almost as many scammers appear to take advantage of desperate situations. Because the federal government announced or expanded several mortgage relief programs this year, all kinds of sound-alike websites have popped up to try to fool consumers into parting with their money. Some sound like a government agency, or even part of BBB or other nonprofit consumer organizations. Most ask for an upfront fee to help you deal with your mortgage company or the government (services you could easily do yourself for free), and almost all leave you in more debt. Top Sales Scam The Internet has introduced a whole new way to rip people off. Penny auctions are very popular because it seems like you can get something useful - cameras, computers, etc. - for way below retail. But you pay a small fee for each bid (usually 50¢ to $1.00) and if you aren't the winner, you lose that money. Winners often are not even the top bidder, just the last bidder when time runs out. Although not all penny auction sites are scams, some are being investigated as online gambling. BBB recommends you treat them the same way you would legal gambling in a casino - know exactly how the bidding works, set a limit for yourself, and be prepared to walk away before you go over that limit. Scam of the Year The BBB phishing scam! Hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of people have gotten emails that very much look like an official notice from BBB. The subject line says something like "Complaint Against Your Business," and the instructions tell the recipient to click on a link or open an attachment to get the details. If the recipient does either, a virus is launched on their computer...a virus that can steal banking information, passwords and other critical pieces of information. BBB is working with security consultants and federal law enforcement to track down the source of these emails, and has already shut down dozens of hijacked websites. Anyone who has opened an attachment or clicked on a link should run a complete system scan using reputable anti-virus software. If your computer is networked with others, all machines on the network should be scanned, as well.

HOROSCOPES

February 1-7

CAPRICORN

December 22-January 19

Capricorn, this week you may have plans to spend some romantic evenings at home with your partner, but things don't always work out as expected. Schedule more time later.

AQUARIUS

January 20-February 18

Aquarius, it may seem like the walls are closing in on you, but that's just because you need a change of scenery. Trade in dull responsibilities for something else.

PISCES

February 19-March 20

Pisces, this week you may find it difficult to concentrate. This is out of character for you, but everyone has an off-day.

ARIES

March 21-April 19

Aries, you may have trouble connecting with family this week. You are very busy with personal issues and other obligations. It may seem frustrating, but keep your head up.

TAURUS

April 20-May 20

Taurus, you have a generous spirit, but sometimes you can be just a little bit too generous. Don't go overboard this week when buying gifts for those close to you.

GEMINI

May 21-June 21

Gemini, you have always been very practical when it comes to matters of finance. Sometimes, however, the lure of shopping can try your resolve.

CANCER

June 22-July 22

Cancer, you are in a high point in your career, and you don't want to lose the momentum. But you could feel pulled in too many directions
this week to impact the job.

LEO

July 23-August 22

You have unusually low levels of energy this week, Leo. There isn't much you can do about it other than prioritize your tasks so you can accomplish the most pressing things.

VIRGO

August 23-September 22

Virgo, any trips that you are planning this week could be delayed by some mechanical difficulties.
You'll get there eventually, but it could take a while.

LIBRA

September 23-October 22

Libra, don't take anything at face value this week and try to avoid gossip as much as possible. This is achieved by surrounding yourself with gracious people.

SCORPIO

October 23-November 21

You are bound to have a good time this week, Scorpio. It's because you will be spending time with your family. Enjoy as much time together as you can, including a good meal.

SAGITTARIUS

November 22-December 21

This is the ideal week to stay inside as much as possible and read or get busy work taken care of. Although it may not be exciting, it doesn't require a lot of energy.

HEART MONTH

Although heart disease is sometimes thought of as a “man’s disease,” it is the leading cause of death for both men and women in the United States, and women account for nearly 50% of heart disease deaths.

Heart disease is often perceived as an “older woman’s disease,” and it is the leading cause of death among women age 65 and older. However, heart disease is the third leading cause of death among women age 25-44, and the second leading cause of death among women age 45-64.

The best way to reduce the risk of heart disease is living a healthy lifestyle:

- Eat a healthy diet, including plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol and high in fiber, and limit salt and sodium.
- Maintain a healthy weight. To determine if your weight is in a healthy range, use the Body Mass Index (BMI) – multiply your weight in pounds by 703; divide that number by your height in inches; divide that number by height in inches again. “Normal” weights within a BMI range of 20.0 to 24.9 are associated with the lowest risk for overall health problems.
- Exercise regularly. Most adults should engage in moderate-intensity exercise for at least 30 minutes on most days of the week. Consult with your doctor before starting any exercise program.
- Don’t smoke. Cigarette smoking greatly increases your risk for heart disease, so if you do smoke take steps to stop. Join a smoking cessation class or talk with your doctor about ways to help you quit.

- Limit alcohol use. If you drink, drink in moderation. That means no more than one drink per day for women (or two for men).
- Have your cholesterol checked. This simple blood test should be done at least once every five years.
- Monitor your blood pressure. Since this medical condition has no symptoms, be sure to check it on a regular basis.
- Manage your diabetes. If you have diabetes, closely monitor your blood sugar levels and talk with your doctor about treatment options.
- Take your medicine. Follow doctor’s instructions carefully on all medications, and if you don’t understand something, ask.
